The MPS does operate a 'High Profile Request' list and circulates that to all internal departments for information. The purpose is to give senior management visibility on the questions being asked that may affect their business area.

The list is focused on the question, not the applicant, albeit the list includes the applicant and if they are a known journalist that information is included. There is not a list of 'high profile' applicants maintained, media or otherwise.

This has been acknowledged previously and placed on the disclosure log.
